

FAREWELL BLUES: A NOTE FROM THE STEELDRIVERS

Dear Friends, Family and Fans,

It happens with the seasons of the year, our children and lives. And it has happened to the SteelDrivers: change. Mike Henderson, the man who called and brought all of us into his musical vision six years ago, is saying goodbye. From the little cabins in Georgia to the stage of the Grand Ol' Opry, he has been the rock solid pulse of the band. In those six years the SteelDrivers have been nominated for Grammy Americana and IBMA awards. We have enjoyed sharing our brand of music at the many festivals, stages and TV shows throughout the country in that time.

We wish him the very best in all his pursuits and will forever be thankful for the great times we have shared, as friends and fellow musicians. We believe that his influence, whether with an instrument or a pen, will continue in the SteelDrivers. He has left an indelible mark on the sound and soul of the group. And the strength of his music will continue night after night on the stage and in the studio as the SteelDrivers continue their journey down that Ol' Lonesome Bluegrass Highway.

We will miss you Brother.

With love,

Tammy, Richard, Gary and Mike
